Editor, 1953 - 1973 --

An Index of the first ten volumes of THEOLOGY DIGEST gave only the authors in alphabetical order with full name and the English title under which their article had been digested. To this was prefixed a systematic index of categories somewhat more forward-looking than the traditional treatises. There each English title in full appeared only once at the point where it was judged most relevant. This systematic index was thought-provoking and use-provoking, but it required its own alphabetic index of some ninety titles, and even these did not of course exhaust the numerous themes of which a single TD article often treated several with serious fulness.

Carrying forward the principles pioneered in that Index, it has been decided to present here a Cumulative Index including also those ten years along with the following ten. The alphabetical list of topics has been expanded to several hundred, including at their proper alphabetical place in SMALL CAPITALS the traditional treatises and more current major subdivisions of theological research. Under them are recapitulated all the relevant articles elsewhere indexed under more specific cue-words. Moreover, all the authors' names also have been inserted into the single strict alphabetical order, though they have been printed in bold-face type so that they will stand out properly as the major consultation-feature of this Index.

To all this has been added an entirely new feature. The very nature of the TD project was such that it has provided over the years a survey not only of the themes prominent in current research, but also of the degree to which various periodicals focus the themes of striking general interest. Hence this Index includes, also in the one general alphabetical order but in italics, every periodical from which our digests have been drawn, by year and with author's name in each case. This listing also includes periodicals which have received mention in special connections or in a checklist updated as far as 1962. This feature of our Index should not be regarded as a popularity-contest, nor as our vote as to which periodicals are most functional. Indeed, on the contrary, it often serves as an act of contrition and a guideline to ourselves for the future, since it enables us to recognize how many significant periodicals are not represented with proportionate frequency. All in all, nevertheless, we have confidence that our readers will find in these listings and frequencies a fair measure of the importance of the various periodicals in keeping them informed on the topics they prize.

A separate Scripture Index in the order of the various biblical books would have been desirable in a project of this kind. Tabulations were in fact made with a view to including every single Scripture citation which occurred anywhere in any article. It was found, however, that the usage of the respective authors and digesters was quite random as to the completeness with which their biblical evidences were cited. We decided to put SCRIPTURE BOOKS, with or without chapter and verse numbers, which form the object of an explicit analysis, in the alphabetical order of the English name of the book itself (though for Corinthians and Chronicles, "First" appears as a Roman numeral after the name of the book).

Two minor innovations deserve notice here. The Editorials which have been a feature of every issue since the beginning are noted (with e after page-number) both under their main topic, and under the name of the author as far as this could be retrieved for the earlier issues in which they were unsigned. This listing has enabled us also to give a grateful prominence to the twenty scholars who annually over the years served as Managing Editors. Since these worked in very close collaboration with the Editor in planning and outlook, it was not always possible to be sure in a given case which of the two should be more properly credited with the authorship of the editorial, but the attribution is basically reliable and important. A minor and semi-editorial feature has been the citation of striking paragraphs from theologians currently in vogue, which from the beginning we have used to fill up the page below the ending of any article. These have often caught the notice of our readers and it is quite likely that someone might wish to look one up, if only to verify whether it was a digest or not. Hence, taking into account the diversity of this material from the proper functions of a Digest periodical, we have included these citations in fine print (entailing sometimes divergence from strict alphabetical order), and under only author and one subject-topic each.

Naturally the Lectures, both of the Bellarmine and Wade series and others which for ten years have been a regular feature of an added fourth annual issue, are indexed alphabetically, both as a series (including also the few lectures which it was not possible to publish) and under the names of the respective authors and several major topics treated (with L after page-numbers). Special attention must be drawn to the series of lectures by Karl Rahner solemnizing the 150th anniversary of Saint Louis University. These appeared as a fifth annual issue in 1968, and though they have a pagination separate from the volume-number 16 of which they do not properly form a part, they have been indicated here under the anomalous key 16/5.

Both the author's name (with titles like bishop or O.P., but not Rev. or Prof.) and the English title given to the summary of his article, are given in full only once, in the alphabetical order of his surname. This holds normally even for venerated names like Aquinas, Loyola, Alacoque, despite some exceptions like Augustine, Teresa, Thérèse. In the case of Spanish surnames and a few others, full reference is given not only under the last, but also under the preceding, which is normally the patronym. The author's name is elsewhere mentioned only as briefly as possible, under periodical-titles or topics. By checking under his surname, not only his complete title can be found, but also that given to the English form of his article, which however may correspond only loosely to the original title, verifiable on the TD page which is referred. Prior practice of TD has been followed as far as practicable in alphabetizing under de and van most foreign as well as American names, with cross-reference for samples of all dubious cases.

We have been at pains to give in full for each item of the alphabetical index the complete numerical reference to volume, issue, year, first page, and last page, of the cited article. The letter a after the last page means that this is an "abstract", a briefer or even one-page summary describing the author's thought in third person and without his advance approbation or checking of the manuscript. By far the greater number of our articles have been in the "digest" form, letting the author himself speak in the same form and words as the original only more condensed, but with his approval in writing for the formulation of the manuscript submitted to him before printing. A few key-names, also of theological centers like Louvain, have been indexed even where not the object of a formal treatment at the indicated page. Reference to the brief biographical rundown on the author, normally included on the first or last page of the issue in which a digest of his work appears, is here given by the letter b following the page-number after the pages of the digest itself.

Despite our efforts to include in strictly alphabetical order the logical subdivision into updated categories of the earlier Index, we were forced to conclude finally that such a systematic ordering provides an irreplaceable tool. Hence we have added at the end, as succinctly as possible with volume and first-page number only, and name of author under which fuller data can be checked, a division of topics according to the traditional treatises somewhat updated.

The work of preparing this Index was confided to associate editor Robert North, S.J., professor of the Pontifical Biblical Institute in Rome. Though his specialty is Near Eastern archeology, he has published numerous articles on theological key-issues [including one which appeared in TD 21 (1973) 135-139], and books on Teilhard and Christology [obliquely referred in TD 19 (1971) 29]. Over the years he has done a very large number of the digests which appeared in these pages, and has also served tirelessly in the checking of other digests and similar editorial details. Though he has striven for a computer-like objectivity, it is natural that in the choice of some topics or omission of others his own prior experiences inside or outside TD may have exerted an influence greater than some users might prefer. But it is our pleasure to acknowledge personally the service he has here rendered not only to the Editors but to all the readers and research-consultors of THEOLOGY DIGEST. Our gratitude goes out equally on this occasion to all those scholars who for twenty years have toiled to select these articles, summarize them, and bring them into publishable form. Through these years we all benefited immeasurably by the devotedness of our secretarial staff, notably Mrs. Helen Sparks, Mrs. Flossie Glynn, Miss Jean Read, and Mrs. Margaret Stewart. But the thanks of us all are due most of all to our readers.
